Lewistown Narrows Highway.

The State Highway through the Lewistown Narrows is completed and ready to be turned over to the State Highway department.

The finished road is of a Telford base with an asphaltic concrete top. The length of the section is 57,553 feet, or 10.81 miles with a width of sixteen feet. The cost was $220,005.99, or at the rate of $20,265.89 a mile. The contracts were signed in October, 1911, and it has taken two years to complete the work in Millin and Juniata counties. To make the road safe it was necessary to fence it in, and this cost $521.89 per mile. For years it has been a puzzle to road builders and engineers how to get through the narrows with a good road, but the difficulty has at last been solved and the road will soon be one of the most frequently traveled in the State because of its picturesqueness and wonderfully beautiful surroundings.

INSTITUTE PROCEEDINGS

this, when communication was by tradition and hereditary superstition, the reins of transmitted knowledge. More important than all other studies domestic science, agriculture, and all others, not of so much importance as the teaching of reading. Reading is the most important work that a teacher has to do. We unlock the doors of history, and of the dim past, to drive into the hidden recesses of the ages, and of the present, by reading, we must give the pupils the power to read a book intelligently, to read the pages of history as made constantly, so they may be prepared for life's duties as they go out into the world. One of the great mistakes during the first three years, is that we make the pupil read mechanically. Just one method to teach reading—not word sentence or any of the many methods employed. The pupil must master the word, must form mental images, must know the thought, must have proper emotion, and use the will. To teach reading successfully we must follow thought relation.

Music. Dr. Robert A. Armstrong of the University of West Virginia, Morgantown, was introduced and spoke on "The Personality of the Teacher." There are three things a speaker should know, viz.: What to leave out; what to put in; when to leave off. It is said the most profound thought is never expressed, because the finest things in nature in thought cannot be expressed. The most powerful things in the world are those which are silent. There is about the teacher that silent force which speaks louder than words. The personality is prominent. The personality is prominent. Personality is the center of the forces of life, and no teacher can be a good teacher who does not cultivate that force. The strong and good should be given much attention, and the weak and wrong discarded because no emotion comes to perfection until expressed.

Dr. Yoder of the Medical Department of University of Pennsylvania, spoke for a few minutes upon the ways in which the services of the University of Pennsylvania can be of use to the teachers giving an invitation to visit the institution when in Philadelphia to observe what the University can do for the teacher.

THURSDAY MORNING.

Music. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. L. Dow Ott, pastor of the M. E. Church.

Dr. Armstrong lectured on the subject, "What Shall I Look for in a Masterpiece?" By way of introducing the subject he alluded to anniversary exercises of yesterday, congratulating Institute on the opportunity of enjoying so excellent a program, an impression made upon him that will never be forgotten. My subject has so much to do with books. There is so much good poetry emitted in the books of to-day. Many educated persons do not know of some of the leading selections of poetry, nor of their authors. There are persons who are so imbued with the importance of doing something that shall benefit the generations to come in learning, so there are those who build large structures thereby giving the impression of majesty in architecture, as also the person who writes the story which shall entertain the masses in fiction. A man who can write a good poem is a genius. Shakespeare was the greatest philosopher that human nature has ever produced. He had the greatest power of expression of any man that ever lived. Some of the great ideals in poetry are by Browning, Tennyson, Burns, Gray. Never was a great writer who did not have great imaginary ideals. George Eliot and Charles Dickens were referred to as portraying life in its real phases making so real that we think we are living the scenes described. We are all poets in that we idealize our thoughts. The most important element in a masterpiece is the emotional, we write the sciences every day, but the emotional in literature is lasting. The graduates of our high schools know more of science to-day than did the ancient philosophers.

Prof. L. L. Taylor stated there are two things which this Institute needs to emphasize and purvey. The first, the good work along industrial lines given to the students of the country, the splendid exhibit in the Library Room of the Germ House by the pupils in our schools is commendable and the work is a vision of all our dreams. Second, the history making work in the school program on the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's Address and Declaration of the Soldiers National Cemetery, and advised all teachers to go and stand where the banner of Lincoln stood in dedicating this most glorious and historic place, which shall go down the ages when we all forget.

Dr. George spoke on "Prevention of Educational Waste." Some one has said, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This can be proved by an ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure. Instances were cited where wrong teaching has existed, bad habits formed, both mentally and physically where the prevention is worth much more than the cure. The time spent in reformation of wrongs should be spent in prevention; there is more waste correcting than preventing. He illustrated this by calling attention to the queen who said "My kingdom for an inch of time." If we should read Handel, we would not have to stand there in the cold and then in the heat.

into bankruptcy in one year's time. To remedy this in our schools is to be more exact and methodical in our work; keep up the interest, clear heads, make them healthy, ventilate. We can do as much work in one hour while air is pure, than can be done in six hours where these impurities exist. Ventilate, let in God's pure oxygen; pupils must be given a favorable opportunity to do good work; teacher and pupil should study; the teacher who has quit studying should quit teaching; nothing will keep the teacher fired for the work except the teacher be a learner, and this study must be done before the lesson is assigned. The third prevention of educational waste is to assign the lesson properly. The teacher must know that the pupil has the help, the time, the strength, the ability to get the lesson, and then make conditions favorable in the school room. The State of Pennsylvania has made provision for the education of the pupil and it is our duty to fit them to do the world's work. It is the purpose of the school to preserve the ideals of patriotism, or society, of the home and teachers should consecrate themselves to their work.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Music by orchestra and Institute, led by Prof. I. L. Taylor.

"The Farmer as a Factor in Civilization" was subject of Dr. Colegrove's address and in opening he gave the hotel menu and said all came from the farm. Dress, clothing, all came from the farm. God bless the man who sold the feed that gave us what we need for our comforts. About 50 years ago 1-5 per cent of our population lived in the city, 4-5 in country; later 2-3 in city, 1-3 country; now almost 1-2 live in city. 50 per cent of farmers in Pennsylvania own their farms, in the city not one in one hundred owns his business. Why this great trend of population from country to city. Because not taught the right attitude toward the farm in the home and in the school. Teachers urge more love for the farm, the toil of the farm under better conditions than average work of the person in the city. The farmer has come up through a long line of slavery, often despised. Many think city the only place for opportunities where you can have society, advantages, etc., and this has a tendency for the allurements of the city to find sooner or later the picture has been too much overdrawn for city pleasures, many avenues in the city closed to those who cannot meet the demands upon their means and abilities. The consequence is ruin, disgrace and failure. The boy or girl in the country who is told about the moving pictures, parties and social functions of the town gets the idea that the town affords great pleasures than the country. The farmer has been the great conqueror of the ages. The farmer is also a creator, he has created the splendid apple we have in Adams county from the crab apple, by continued grafting. Burbank was the creator of the potato. The farmer is the greatest inventor of the ages; also the greatest architect of the times; the farmer has built nations. Years ago before people got their living out of the ground they had to hump. Speaker referred to Hiawatha as one of the most beautiful stories to teach the beauties of nature and of the hunt and it was a good thing now if the young man were to prove himself able to provide a living for his bride. Before man learned to get his living from the earth he had to pursue the hunt. Nations began where there were fertile valleys, the splendid cities of those valleys and all its improvements depend upon agriculture. Referred to Rome in the valley of the Tiber as being a great city from the fast of being along a town affords greater pleasures than the other. Go through the history of nations and you will find that the greater part of the fighting for freedom was done by the farmers. The farmer fired the shot at Concord and Bunker Hill that was heard around the world. England to conquer the Boers in South Africa had to summon to her armies soldiers from her numerous sessions. George Washington left the farm to save our country. These are things to teach. Cincinnati left his farm in the furrow to go battle for his country. In our own country we find the best weapons of a war gained in education from the farm. Whether in the Battle of Gettysburg, in every battle of our history, we find that the man who won the victory was the farmer. The farmer was the man who won the victory in the Battle of Gettysburg. The farmer was the man who won the victory in the Battle of Gettysburg. The farmer was the man who won the victory in the Battle of Gettysburg.

Dr. Armstrong spoke upon the subject, "The Greatest Book." The first part of this great book never stops. Being the last ten years 1840-1850, Bibles were distributed in the world. Referred to our less manner of reading the Bible as compared with the reading of the Koran in Mohammedan countries during the last 1200 years. The Koran has been read constantly when the voice of one reader stops another takes his place, and so the reading goes on continually. We read our Bible too often at long intervals of time. Why do we not know more about this great book? We think this book should not be read as the ordinary piece of literature is read. We read "My Kingdom for an inch of time." If we should read Handel, we would not have to stand there in the cold and then in the heat.

The Hand of Death.

HOMER HENRY WRAY of Leechburg, Pa., a Junior in Gettysburg College, died at the home of President Granville on last Friday evening, following an operation earlier in day for an abscess of the lung. The abscess began to develop after an injury in a football game at Carlisle on Nov. 1, when the Gettysburg team played the Dickinson Red eyes when he was hurt near the chest, but the injury was so slight that he stayed on the field and watched the game to an end. At first it was thought pneumonia was developing and it was only several days before the fact that the true character of trouble appeared. Dr. Geo. B. Kunkle of Harrisburg, performed the operation and stated the fracture was evidently received before the time of the Dickinson game and may have been irritated by an additional bump at that time, that the cause of the abscess may have been the injury and yet may have been caused by cold in lung. That the injury or cold would likely have proven fatal coming singly but together had produced complications, and that the originating cause could not be determined with any certainty. The young man put up a brave fight for his life, his mother and brother Stanley of the Dickinson class being with him and the end was a shock to the community. He had been a young man enjoying the admiration and respect of his associates and all who knew him. He entered college in fall of 1911 and was a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. College classes were suspended on Saturday and the game with Johns Hopkins on that date was cancelled. On Saturday morning impressive services were held by Dr. E. A. Wagner and Rev. F. E. Taylor and the casket carried by members of his class and fraternity was taken to the Reading Station and as the train left the college bell tolled 23 times for the years of his life. Mr. Wray is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wray, the former being editor of the "Leechburg Advance," and besides his parents is survived by three brothers.

Grand Jury Report.

The Grand Jury at the recent November court visited the jail and almshouse and made the following report:

The Grand Jury of their own personal knowledge present the following bridges on the Baltimore Pike as being unsafe and dangerous: Rock Creek, White Run, Two Taverns, near Yeast's Store, at Mud College school house, Ring Creek and two near the Maryland line, and also a dangerous fording at the Cross Run on the Bonneauville Road where a bridge is needed.

And that we visited the jail and almshouse in all their departments and found everything in excellent condition, being well kept, clean and healthful, being a credit to the sheriff, ward and keepers, with the exception of the bath tubs in the old men's and old women's departments at the almshouse. We deem it necessary and we hereby advise the Board of Commissioners.
